Separate Facts from Hype. (Questions & answers to help you decide)

Q: We know Betsy Ann has a reputation for high quality, but aren't your prices too high to sell on a fundraiser?

A: Betsy Ann has a well-earned reputation for the finest chocolates, and uses the highest quality ingredients in the world to make their products. The cost of these ingredients is reflected in our prices. Betsy Ann has long had a reputation as one of the best-kept secrets in the area for incredible value. Well-traveled people know to purchase this level of quality in other areas costs approximately double the Betsy Ann price (that is if they are able to find such high quality, which is becoming more and more rare). Our reputation, recognized by such notables as the Food Network, not only makes sales come easy, but will also drive higher sales volume as salespeople feel proud selling a product recognized as the best.

Many who organize fundraisers examine prices closely to make the best decision for their organization. This effort is commendable, but remember, price should not be the sole consideration. A higher quality product with a slightly higher price pays off handsomely, especially in the long run. When customers know it is high quality, they are less afraid to buy. They will not quibble over a slightly higher price for the best quality. In fact, they are pleased to purchase something they know they will like. Over time they will look forward to purchasing from your organization because of its reputation for selling high quality.

Betsy Ann's prices may be slightly higher than larger mass made alternatives, but this is due to higher costs for the highest quality ingredients, and higher labor costs to make small hand-made batches. But the quality is well worth the price. Today's consumers are well informed and realize it costs more to make the best, and are easily willing to pay a small amount more for the highest quality. For a slightly higher selling price, your organization can be proud to sell the highest quality chocolates available anywhere. Remember, profits are a percentage of the selling price, and higher prices yields higher profits for your organization.

Profit Comparison

Q: Will one company's products really sell more than another?

A: The success of all fundraising campaigns rises or falls on the efforts of its organizers. The more organized and motivated the campaign, the higher the sales. Selling quality products of good reputation increases customer purchases. Betsy Ann has both quality products and a simple to follow program to organize and motivate your group. Our program is so successful that without fail, all groups who carefully follow it sell more products and earn more profits than they ever did with any other fundraiser!

Q: Everyone claims to sell the best quality, how do I know which is really the best?

A: Ingredients determine the quality of candy. Recipes vary but there is no hiding the quality of what goes in to a product. The best ingredients are the most expensive. The highest quality is never the lowest price. When people know it is good quality they automatically tend to buy more. Consistently selling the highest quality builds a reputation that makes it easier for future generations of fundraisers. The best way to determine quality is to taste the products. In addition, ask around about a company's reputation and research the internet for consumer reviews.

Q: What are hidden charges?

A: Hidden charges are unexpected expenses, such as, for brochures and selling materials. These costs reduce profits and the percentage earned can be less than the profit percentage stated in selling materials.

Q: Is it better to sell a product widely available in grocery & convenience stores, or to sell more exclusive products?

A: A product widely available in grocery and convenience stores provides a product name recognized by more people. However, sales may be reduced, since it can be widely purchased anytime, and often at discount. A more exclusive product can increase sales since it is more difficult to obtain, and more likely to be purchased for gifts.

Q: Other organizations offer prizes, why does Betsy Ann only offer a percentage of profits for prizes?

A: Other organizations give you prizes for selling incentives that they purchase and may or may not be what you want to provide. To purchase these prizes they use monies that may otherwise be used for your profits. We believe you know best what to provide for your prizes. We provide a generous amount of allowance for prizes. If you do not think prizes are appropriate for your organization, you keep the allowance as additional profits.
